HOLBEIN ... SECOND TO NONE!

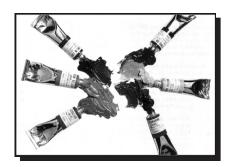

Holbein color chemists, using only the finest pigments available, have achieved the highest standards of quality control in the industry, working to precise standards at each stage of the manufacturing process. The result is unerring consistency from production run to production run.

THE ART OF COLOR MAKING

The development of the color making techniques was largely independent of European and North American standards. Each color line is adapted to meet the special requirements of the professional with permanence, brilliance and technique in mind. Artist Oil Color is formulated and ground to compensate for the inherent differences in the working characteristics of pigments. The result is consistent working characteristics across the entire palette. The Artist Moist Water Color is ground to reproduce the characteristics of the hand-ground pigments of the Renaissance, offering the water colorist America's most unique and exciting water medium. The full range of Holbein color products offer unique characteristics which set them abart from all combetitive lines. regardless of origin.

ATTENTION TO DETAIL

The formulation and grinding/blending techniques for each color are modified to compensate for the inherent differences in the working characteristics of pigments. The result is an even consistency across the entire palette of 175 colors: Seven antique colors, 11 transparent colors, four foundation colors, and 7 whites. Utilizing the purest of available pigments and manufactured to the highest standard of quality control in the industry, Holbein Artists' Oil Color ranks as the world's finest.

HOLBEIN OILS

Ground from 3 to 5 times as necessary to achieve a universally consistent viscosity, the manufacturing process in each of the preparation, mixing, grinding, adjustment and filling stages is monitored by reference to optimum quality standards. Throughout the production process, Holbein insures its quality standards by test inspection of pigment purity, color tone, applicability and adhesion, physical stability, light stability, thermo-stability and anti-bacterial stability. The result is a world-class professional oil color without equal. The successful oil colorist knows that of all the colors used, the quality of white is critical. Ground 4 to 5 times the Holbein superiority will be obvious to the user. There are six painting whites and 5 underpainting/foundation whites, all of which are high percentage pigment colors.

SEVEN DIFFERENT WHITES

Zinc White, Titanium White, Silver White, Permanent White (SF), Ceramic White (a new painting white) in poppy oil, Permanent White (EX) in safflower oil (from the red Benihana flower which grows in greater profusion than the poppy), Quick Drying White (a new underpainting white) and four Foundation Whites.

SILVER WHITE One of the first artificially produced pigments, white lead mixes well with oil to a smooth uniform viscosity. It has excellent opacity and brush handling qualities. It is toxic in nature and will react by darkening when exposed to sulphur compounds or fumes.

ZINC WHITE Zinc oxide is more transparent than lead and it's surface qualities are more brittle. It does not have the same brushing qualities, is slower drying, but is non-toxic and does not react to sulphur and is whiter than lead.

TITANIUM WHITE Inert and non-reactive in most ordinary conditions. It has greater opacity than lead or zinc, but tends to yellow in the short term. It is slower drying than lead, but faster than zinc. It handles and mixes well, is non-toxic. Surface qualities may be strengthened by mixing with zinc oxide which helps reduce the sometimes too intense tinting power inherent in titanium pigment.

PERMANENT WHITE SF & EX are titanium whites with the same general handling qualities but with a barium sulphate additive which inhibits yellowing in early drying while reducing tinting power and increasing transparency. EX is made with safflower oil while SF is made with traditional linseed oil.

CERAMIC WHITE A new painting white developed by a joint research project of the Holbein Works Ltd. laboratory and the Japanese government. Ceramic white was developed to combine the most positive qualities of other painting whites when taken collectively. It contains non-toxic titanium and strontium pigment which will not react with sulphur. Offers superior surface strength without brittleness, increases tinting and covering power over lead and zinc. When compared to titanium white, increases transparency, drying time and visual whiteness, as well as excellent handling qualities.

WHITES (CONTINUED)

QUICK DRYING WHITE A new underpainting white made of titanium white, calcium carbonate, poppy oil, alkyd resin and petroleum solvent. It will dry, if not mixed with slower drying oil color, in 4-6 hours when applied at normal thickness, and 12-18 hours when applied thickly in impasto. Non-toxic, virtually non-yellowing, non-reactive to sulphur and inert with strong adhesion qualities. Quick-drying white will dry matte, but blends easily with mediums and varnishes to a gloss finish. In impasto, it will dry to the consistency of raw rubber so the surface may be carved successfully.

FOUNDATION WHITES

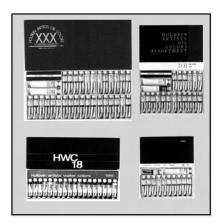

Many artists overlook or are unaware of the advantages of under painting. Whether modern or ancient, the professional artist seldom failed to prepare the painting ground. Under painting a proper foundation not only provides a barrier between oil painting and primed surface, but will greatly enhance the full and lasting qualities of color. Foundation white and the three colors are specially formulated of quick-drying silver white. Despite the availability of many good canvasses in fine, moderate and rough grain, the most suitable surface in texture and color tone will be the surface the individual artist prepares. Quick-drying (24-30 hours), Holbein Foundation Colors may be used to build a foundation through application of rough but thin layers and may be used to prepare excellent impasto surfaces. Thick applications should be avoided as they can lessen the adhesion qualities of the finished painting. All four foundation colors are a high percentage pigment in linseed oil. All include basic lead carbonate, titanium dioxide and calcium carbonate and are permanency rated. Additionally, Greenish Grey and Umber include chromium sesquioxide, bone black and native earth pigments.

HOLBEIN WATERCOLOR

For the past 100 years Holbein color laboratories have developed and produced its moist transparent watercolor. It is an industry leader in brush handling qualities, light fastness, physical permanence, color vigor and a full range palette that retains its clean, crisp and brilliant characteristics. Arranged within the primary red, yellow and blue groups, and augmented compatibly by earthen and green groups necessary to accurately reproduce images of the world around us, Holbein has produced 24 New Colors, each conceptually intended to enhance the artist's ability to improve the results achieved for specific subject matter.

HOLBEIN OILS & WATERCOLORS are recognized as one of the world's finest lines of colors. Milled and around over and over in bure linseed or gum arabic with just enough binder to make them behave consistently from batch to batch and from painting to painting. Holbein was founded in the 1900's and renamed as Holbein in the 1930's. Headquartered in Osaka, Japan, they are one of the largest manufacturer of artist's materials in the world. They hold a 65% to 75% market share of the Japanese professional market. Their paints retain the traditional ingredients of years past such as lead, mercury, cadmium and cobalt because those pigments are still sought after by professional artists. When handled safely, they pose no threat to the professional artist but should be kept out of the hands of children and disposed of properly. The colors that result are truly remarkable. Watercolors with a luminous quality, oils with gradations of yellows, greens, reds and blues unmatched by any other manufacturer!
